PURPOSE OF REPORT

The Shire received a planning application to redevelop a single house at 22 Irvine Street Council which, if approved, would result in the demolition and replacement of a (Category 2) heritage listed house. That matter and report were deferred to permit the issue of heritage listing to be addressed separately. This report addresses the re-assessment of the heritage value of the house to test the justification of its de-listing and demolition.

SUMMARY AND KEY ISSUES

- Application to remove property from the Shires Heritage List was lodged on October 26, 2021.
- A heritage architect report by Griffiths Architects was provided on September 09, 2021.
- Applicant is proposing the removal and subsequent demolition of a Heritage Listed property (Municipal Heritage Inventory Category 2) to erect a new single dwelling (DA2021/00028).
- Replacement house design seeks variation to the Residential Planning Codes (R Codes) on design principles assessment.

CONSULTATION

There is no statutory requirement to consult parties other than the owners and occupiers. The Planning and Development Regulations requires that a 21-day period of notice to tenants and owners is provided to begin the process of removing a property from the Shire's heritage list. The process is as follows;

1. Formal request to be made in writing to Shire to remove the property to Shire outlining the reasons why the house no longer has heritage value to warrant listing.
2. Replacement house plan and Heritage Architect's report also to be provided to the Council.

The Local Government is required to:

- a. Give notification to owners/occupiers of the property of the application to remove the property from the list; and
- b. Invite owners/occupiers to make a submission within the period of Notice*; and
- c. Carry out any other consultation the local government considers appropriate; and
- d. After consultation and consideration of the submissions made on the proposal, resolves that the place be removed from the Heritage List.

STATUTORY IMPLICATIONS

The process for removal of a property from the heritage list is addressed in the Planning and Development (Model Scheme) Deemed Provisions. The design of the replacement house has been assessed to be compliant with relevant Scheme provisions, Residential Design Codes and Scheme Policies and consistent with Scheme objectives for the residential zone. There are no policy implications evident at this time – the revised proposal is Deemed to Comply with reference to SPP 7.3 Residential Design Codes with the exception of those outlined in the table below:

BACKGROUND

The Applicant intends to redevelop the property for a new single residence. The development application proposes a modern design and would require the full demolition of the current listed house.

Council resolved to defer consideration of the development application for the new house in September 2021 until the heritage listing was investigated and resolved.

Reference to the Shire heritage survey statement summary describes the house as follows:

- The architectural style is Interwar Californian Bungalow
- Significance dates back to a Shire councillor Anthony Craig.
- Management Category 2

The applicant describes the replacement house as follows:

- The house will sit below both adjoining neighbours ground levels.
- Proposed floor level Reduced Level (RL) is 16.30. (Existing house floor level of RL 16.22). This will facilitate universal access throughout the house.
- Single storey house with high ceilings.
- Street setback 9.0m with a porch addressing the street.
- The façade includes a 45-degree pitched roof presenting gables towards the street and boundaries.
- Short length of boundary wall along the eastern boundary.
- Garden will retain four mature trees,
- Vehicular access is from rear right of way.

Hocking Architecture prepared initial heritage survey reports on all MHI properties, and these were usually done without access to the property. That process required that educated deductions were made about the age and era of the property when preparing a heritage survey description. It is understandable that a more thorough examination yields further detail which can better inform the accuracy of assessment.

To clarify the merits of the house remaining on the heritage list, the applicant A recent engaged Griffiths Architects to undertake an independent inspection and report on the value of the house to inform a decision about its continued listing. Griffiths found the house dates from an earlier time and is a Federation Bungalow (from an earlier period) rather than inter-war Californian bungalow, however he advises this does not affect the heritage value.

The current external appearance of the house is the result of many modifications made over time as is often the case to suit needs of the residents. Griffiths was allowed access to view the interior and assess the extent to what remained from the original layout, establish what had been fundamentally removed or altered, and assess changes which were superficial, or replacement of original of materials and finishes.

His assessment of the current listed house reports: -

The assessment concludes that the place has local cultural heritage significance and that the primary heritage values associated with the place are aesthetic historic and social values in relation to the 1915 house. This assessment identifies the place as being of some cultural heritage significance with an associated Level 2 Shire of Peppermint Grove management category. In summary the 1915 core house has (i) cultural heritage significance; and (ii) therefore it is worthy of built heritage conservation.

Griffith's found the house was more original than apparent from just a street viewing, and many of the original rooms, windows and internal features remain intact. He finds the house can be restored with some minor work. He attests to the authenticity of the house in terms of its overall structure.

His report concludes: -

22 Irvine Street is, therefore representative of the residences being constructed immediately before World War 1 in the immediate area surrounding the subject site. Notwithstanding the changes, the effect has been cumulative, and the original house is more authentic than not. It is a good example of the time, style and of the work of William A Nelson, a significant figure in Western Australian Institute of Architects (WAIA) in the early years of the 20th century.

The applicant after receiving Griffith's assessment has provided a statement regarding the proposed removal:

We appreciate that a Heritage Listing of Category 2 has been upheld as a result of the Heritage Assessment for 22 Irvine St and that the core four rooms of the home have heritage value. We do however appeal to the Shire of Peppermint Grove's "big picture" sensibility in this instance. Allowing this dilapidated home to be removed from the heritage list and take the opportunity to have it replaced with a home that is sympathetic to the Development Objectives of the Shire.

OFFICER COMMENT

The re-assessment confirms this house despite some modification retains heritage value and is worthy of remaining on the heritage list. Modifications made to it post WW2 have not diminished its heritage significance and the house is representative of its embodied values.

The applicant proposes to demolish and replace with a completely new house, designed with a sympathy for the street and the context of Peppermint Grove as a contemporary interpretation of single bungalow homestyle. Before it could be approved Council must agree for the listed house to be removed from the List and then a demolition permit may be issued.

The applicant explains that the owner (and intending resident) had owned and managed the house as a rental property for several years. The house was on the Heritage Inventory for several years before the Shire created the heritage list.

Although the owner did not know the house was on the heritage list, records confirm the Shire sent written advice as legally required to the owner's listed address to advise intention to place the property on the list.

The 'discovery' of the heritage listing status and the findings of Griffiths' assessment occurred after preparation of plans by Humphrey Homes for a new house on the land.

The applicant since advised that it is not their intention to retain or restore all or part of the house because they want a modern house. Their proposed design is intended to be sympathetic to the suburb setting. In support of the request to remove from the list they cite the variety of house designs in the near vicinity of this property diminishes the heritage value sufficiently for the Council to support removal from the list to allow demolition and replacement with a modern home.

It is important not to confuse the state and style of adjacent houses as a relevant matter of the heritage merits of this house. Each of the adjoining houses has resulted from redevelopment decision taken in isolation to the site rather than the context of the heritage of the street. The house is shrouded from the street by a tall brick wall and dense plantings, and this may explain why it may have overlooked as a heritage part of the streetscape.

What is relevant and important in this decision is as follows:

- The house has been independently assessed and confirmed to hold sufficient heritage value worthy of its heritage listing; and
- The street and design of surrounding houses did not influence, inform, or reflect that intrinsic heritage value; and
- The heritage list does nominate the section of the street as a heritage area, and so the house should be considered as an independent heritage entity.

The applicant raises the personal circumstances of the owners however this is not considered relevant to confirming the heritage value of the house, and if it were to be admitted as an influencing factor, the Shire would be inviting a wave of similar requests for other heritage listed properties based upon personal or non-heritage related grounds).

In confirming the heritage value and retention on the heritage list, the Shire is not signalling this property cannot be redeveloped, restored, or modernised in a manner which is sympathetic to the heritage values of the listed house.

In similar cases the Shire has received and approved imaginative redevelopment designs which resulted in the protection and often an enhancement of the way a listed house and its heritage values may be appreciated. It is noted that some of those properties were in a more advanced state of disrepair than 22 Irvine Street.

The site holds a good potential for a sympathetic redevelopment. The listed house is located at the front of the lot. There is ample lot area behind the heritage portions of the bungalow to accommodate a modern redevelopment and a rear right of way offers alternative access for the purposes of vehicular access and parking.

Should Council affirm the heritage listing, the next step is for Council to determine the planning application for a new house which currently proposes to demolish the heritage listed house. A refusal of this is the logical result, however the applicant may decide to review the design to consider if and how a redevelopment of the house might achieve the owners' needs and provide a contemporary home which restores and represents heritage values.

OFFICER RECOMMENDATION – ITEM 8.1.1

That Council receives the advice from Griffiths Heritage Architects for 22 Irvine Street Peppermint Grove and confirms that this house has sufficient heritage value to retain its listing on the Shire Heritage List.

Advice Note

Council invites the owner/applicant to consider resubmission of a revised development application to redevelop the property in a manner to conserve and restore the heritage portions of the house (refer Griffiths Figure 6).

PURPOSE OF REPORT

Council is advised to assess the removal of a Category 2 heritage listed property at 34 Keane Street. The recent purchasers of the property plan to redevelop but have yet to prepare plans. They do not wish to retain the current house on the property. Shire has not received any proposed works that has warranted the need for the removal. This report addresses the re-assessment of the heritage value of the house to test the justification of its de-listing and demolition.

SUMMARY AND KEY ISSUES

- Property owners requested to remove the property from the Shire Heritage List (Municipal Heritage Inventory Category 2) on 18 October 2021
- A heritage architect report requested from Griffiths Architects.
- Owners advised removal of the property from the Heritage List will facilitate its demolition and property redevelopment.
- The property owners have not provided details to the Shire of definite future designs for development or subdivision works for the land.

CONSULTATION

There is no statutory requirement to consult parties other than the owners and occupiers. The process is as follows;

1. Formal request to be made in writing to Shire remove the property to Shire outlining the reasons why the house no longer has heritage value to warrant listing.

BACKGROUND

Since their recent purchase (July 2021) the owners have considered redevelopment options, and want the house removed from the heritage list to clear the way for them to consider a wider variety of options. They request 34 Keane Street be removed from the Shires' Heritage list because the interior and some exterior parts of the property had been modified from its original materials and layout.

They have not yet proposed any new plans for the development of the property

Shire Officers met with property owners and architect, Philippa Mowbray - Architecture & Interiors and the owners to inspect the house.

The house was originally identified around 20 years ago in the heritage survey (Cat 2) following a heritage assessment report prepared by Hocking Architecture.

The Statement of Significance for the house identifies it as being a Federation Bungalow from about 1920. The silhouette and form of the northern portion of the house confirms it originates from this time.

When the Shire created the heritage list in 2018 this house was proposed to be listed and owners were advised and able to comment.

The owner of the house at that time lodged an objection to its proposed listing and the Shire engaged John Taylor Architect to complete a heritage assessment as a desktop review of the property in October 2019. Dr Taylor confirmed (based on his research) that the house held heritage value. He advised:-

It is my conclusion, in respect of the following Expert Heritage Assessment, that the place is both (i) of cultural heritage significance; and (ii) worthy of built heritage conservation.

His updated statement of significance (SoS - refer to the attachment) was the basis for the Shire decision to proceed to list the house on the LPS 4 heritage list.

The revised SoS referenced the house for

- its representational importance (i.e. by its existence it reminds about past events, practices and social mores);
- its modified but representative form and street presence and character;
- associations with famous Peppermint Grove families and individuals, and to a lesser degree its representation of building and design methods, materials and craft.

Dr Taylor also made the point that as more of these houses with similar heritage are demolished, the representative heritage value of the remaining examples increases.

OFFICER COMMENT

Heritage Assessments

The house at 34 Keane Street was identified as having heritage value and included as Category 2 due to the extent of modification and its diminished authenticity.

The property was sold in July 2021 and the new owners request the Shire to remove the house from the heritage list.

Given that Dr Taylor's review and report recently held the house to be worthy of listing but noted the property has been extensively modified, the Shire requested Griffiths Architects (Phil Griffiths) to undertake a fresh and more comprehensive review.

Mr Griffiths' review is based upon inspection of the exterior and interior of the house, John Taylor's desktop assessment report, Council and other records. It reports the history of the place to confirm the house has been regularly updated, modernised and this work was often executed without regard for the heritage values or authenticity of the building its materials and finishes.

The full report is contained in the attachments however Griffiths concludes:-

Conclusion of the Assessment

22 Irvine Street is no longer, representative of the residences being constructed immediately before World War I in the immediate area surrounding the subject site.

Cumulative change has eroded the authenticity of the house and has impacted on its heritage significance to a large extent. Reconstruction would involve an amount of speculation, rather than be capable to make a competent (sic) attempt at it.

Council in receipt of further heritage advice is to note Griffiths' report more comprehensively addresses the property than Dr Taylor's assessment in 2019. Taylor's report however maintains that the house by its existence and appearance from the streetscape is recognisable and therefore representative of heritage-era housing of Peppermint Grove. The case for representational value is strongest when there are notable or well known local families or individuals associated with a house – even though the building is substantially altered internally, the street appearance may still resemble the appearance of the home for all these identified people and their families.

The streetscape presentation is consistent with the original house, however Griffiths' report confirms the house has lost much of its materiality and authenticity due to modifications to the interior and exterior which is a constant 'known' since the house was identified as Management Category 2.

Council should appreciate that once taken off the list the house would be demolished without there being any further review or planning assessment applied.

Planning

The stated intention of the owner is to demolish the house and redevelop the property once it is removed from the heritage list.

The Shire has in some past cases agreed to removed places from the heritage list provided there is an established case for the demolition being necessary and for there to be plans prepared and submitted for assessment of a replacement building that respects the location, form and aspect of the demolished house to the street and adjacent houses.

The owner has not provided detailed explanation of the intention for redevelopment of the site and so without any such undertaking or approval, the Shire may not know or be sure of the replacement development, its design or suitability or for that matter if the property is to be redeveloped, subdivided or on-sold.

These issues whilst not central to the heritage value of 34 Keane Street are nevertheless salient to the Council in their deliberations as to the weight afforded to a de-listing of the property based upon the Griffith's report.

The LPP 3 directs that should there be redevelopment of a heritage property, that original front elevations and features to be retained and/or restored wherever possible.

SPP 3.5 "Historic Heritage Conservation" (2007) states there is a presumption against demolition of places on local heritage lists.

Regarding the case for demolition, Local Planning Policy 3 Heritage Places states :-

Demolition and Recording

In accordance with State Planning Policy 3.5 Council holds the view that demolition of heritage places should be avoided wherever possible.

However, if following further historical research, it is assessed by a qualified heritage architect, that demolition can be considered, a replacement building should recognise and respect by its form and position the original building and adjoining residences so that the aesthetic values of the streetscape are maintained

Until the Shire is advised about a design or proposal for the replacement of the house it is unable to consider how a redevelopment would reflect the street appearance and respect by its form and position the original building and adjoining residences so that the aesthetic values of the streetscape are maintained.

Once it is removed from the list SPP 3.5 and LPS 4 Heritage and LPP 3 would not apply to 34 Keane Street. Prior to a decision the Shire should request the owner/applicant to submit a replacement house design which demonstrates respect for the street appearance and respect by its form and position the original building and adjoining residences so that the aesthetic values of the streetscape are maintained.

It recommended Council advises it has deferred a decision about removal of the house from the heritage list until it has received further information from the owner as to the future redevelopment intentions including an indicative design for a replacement house in accordance with LPP 3.

OFFICER RECOMMENDATION – ITEM 8.1.2

That Council receives the advice from Griffiths Heritage Architects for 34 Keane Street Peppermint Grove which updates and confirm the extent to which this house has sufficient heritage value to warrant its retention on the Shire Heritage List and defers further consideration of the request to remove the property until further information is provided to address:-

- 1. the location of a replacement house; and
- 2. the design including the height, bulk and scale of the replacement house; and
- 3. the silhouette and streetscape presentation of the replacement house and street setback and garden; and
- 4. confirm the intended vehicular driveway and access arrangements with relation to the rear or side rights of way.

Advice Note

Council invites the owner/applicant to consider the submission of a redevelopment design as part of an application to redevelop the property in a manner to conserve and restore the heritage representation of the house and its streetscape aspect, form and position.
